

Figures/Tables to Include in a Second Paper

One possible frame for an article about an increase in party calls over time would be to discuss how the reduction of Southern Democrats and rise of the Gingrich Republican would be helpful. I think the IV and DV plots would be good for showing where these individuals are located spatially (especially for the Southern Democrats who are often in Republican space). We could also view the behavior of the Tea Party and/or Freedom Caucus as a group which may be too extreme to benefit from following the call of the party and thus act more like moderates when the party calls.

Figure 1: Party Calls as a Percentage of Votes, Congresses 93-112

0.1 Southern Democrat Plots

Figure 2: House Southern and Other Democrats, Baseline Party Vote Rate

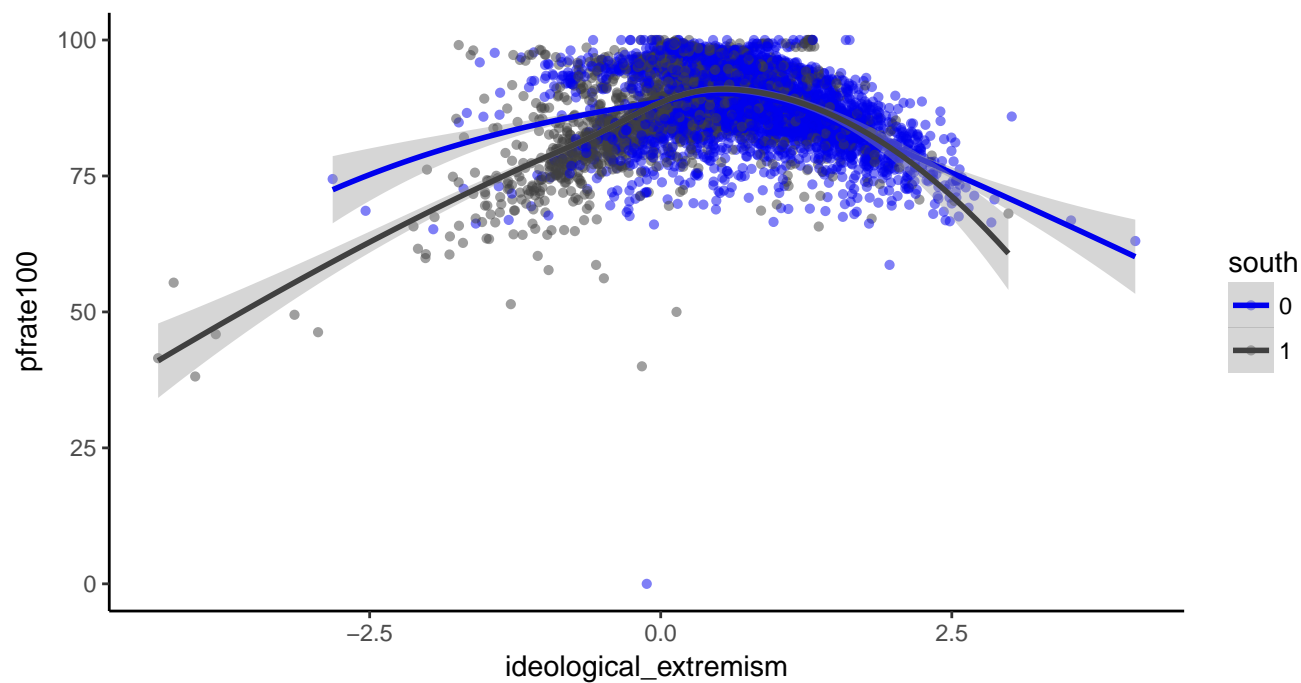

Figure 3: House Southern and Other Democrats, Party Call Rate

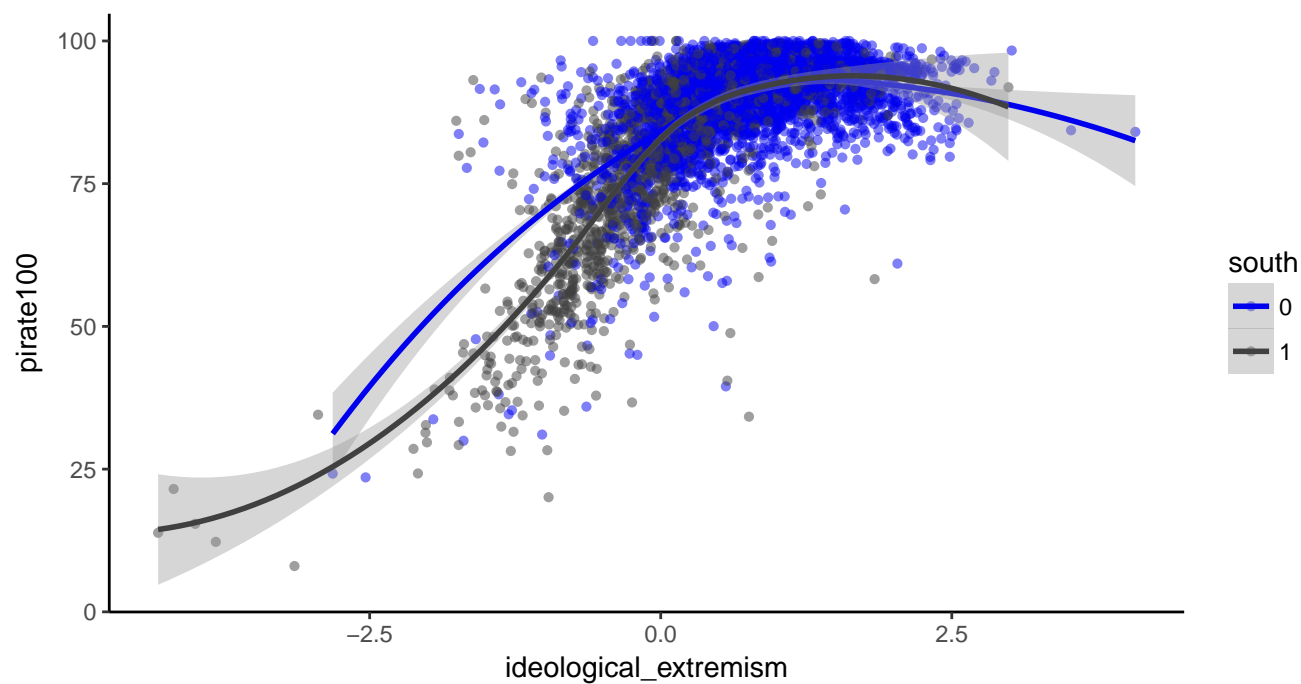

Figure 4: Senate Southern and Other Democrats, Baseline Party Vote Rate

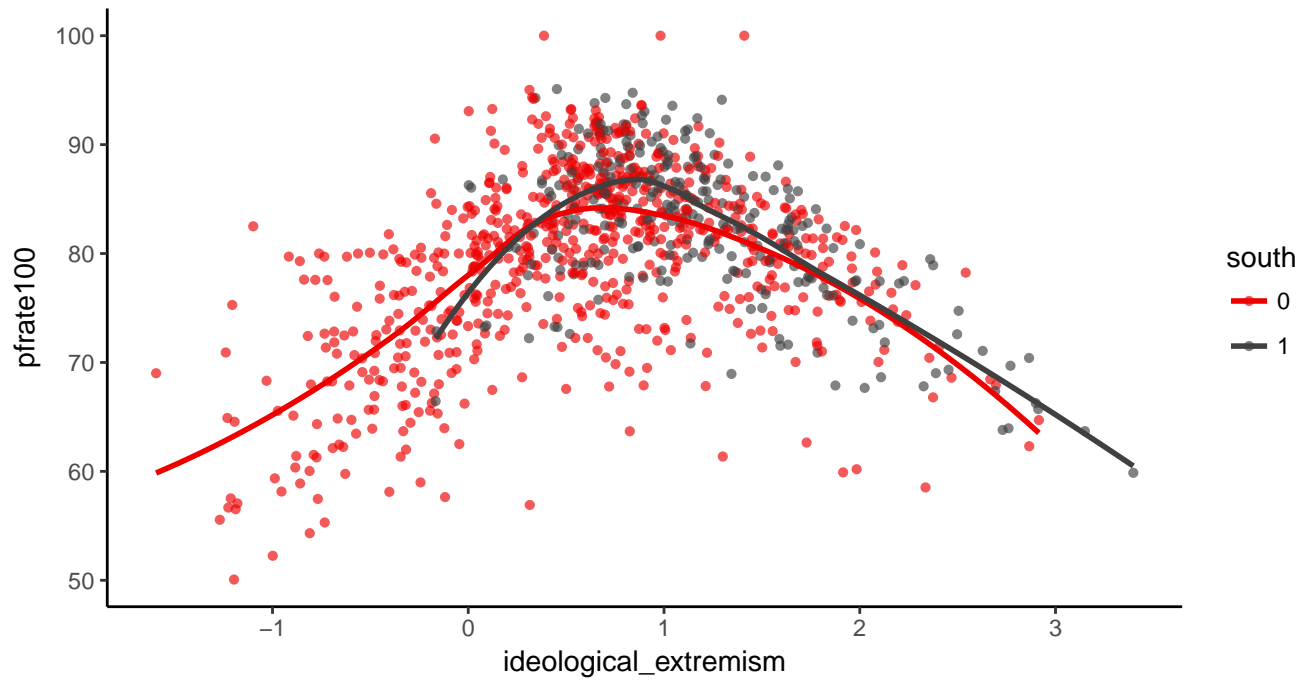

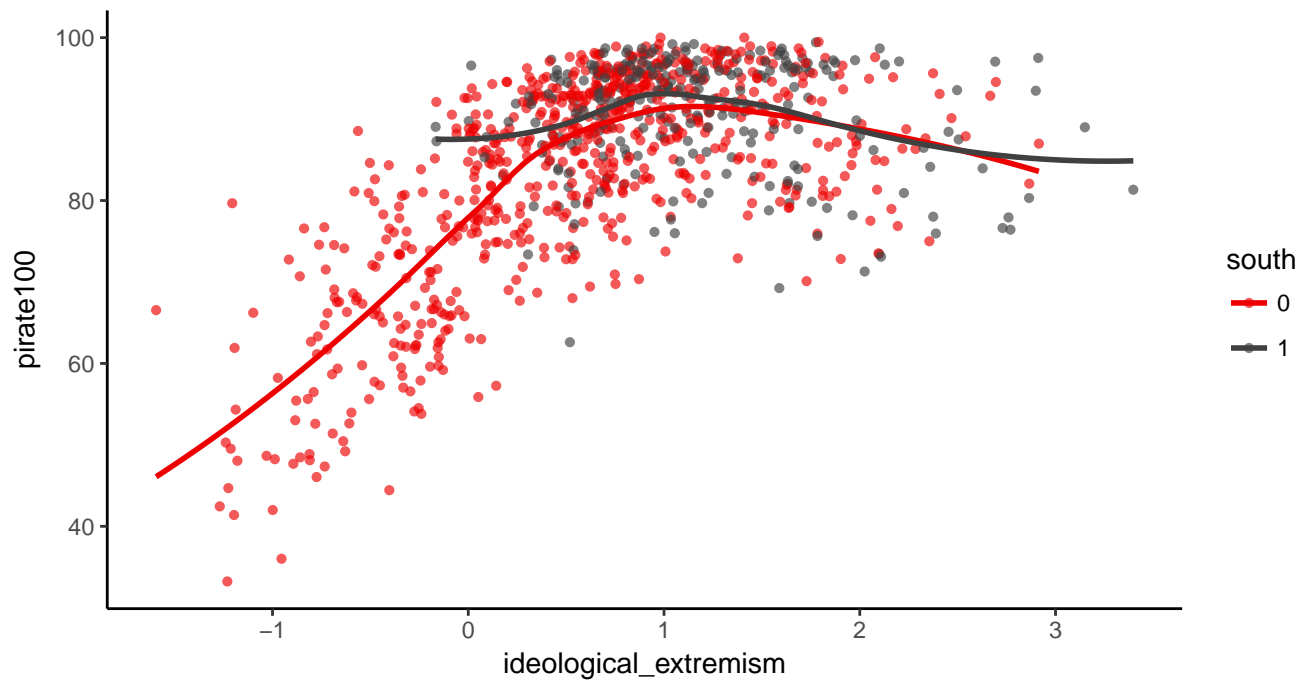

Figure 5: Senate Southern and Other Democrats, Party Call Rate

0.2 Gingrich Republican Plots

Figure 6: House Republican Baseline Party Vote Rate Before Gingrich Leadership

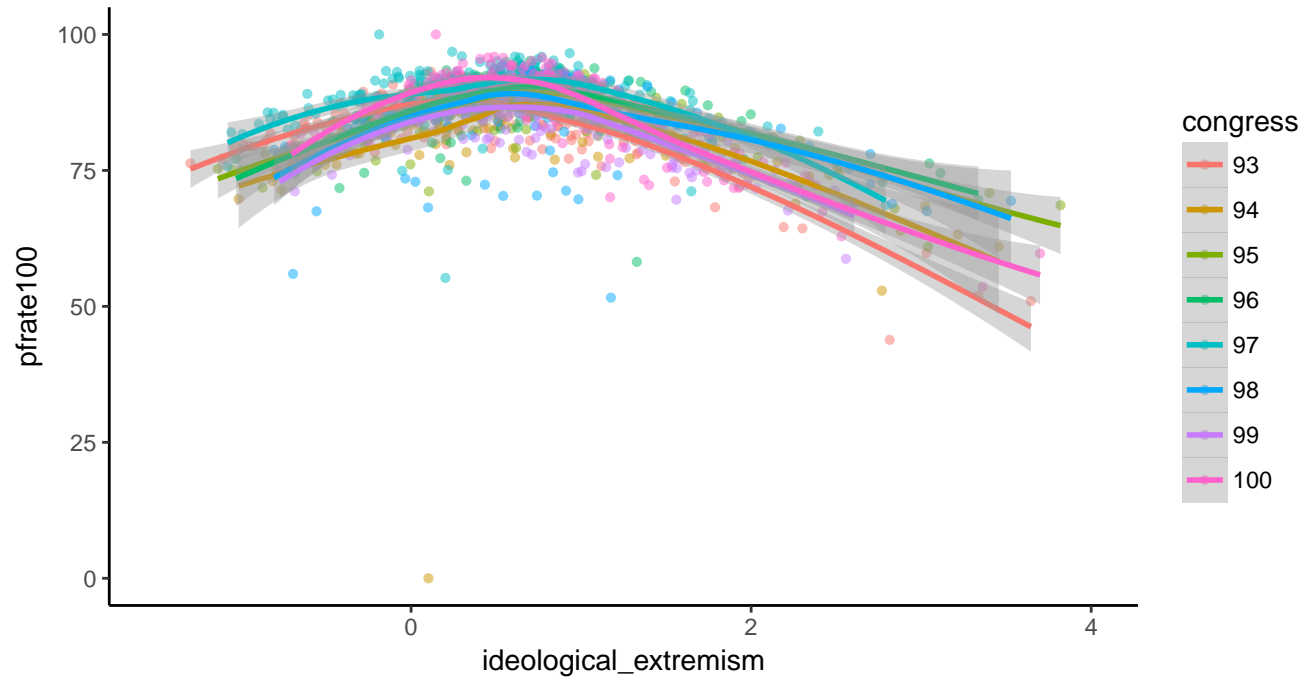

Figure 7: House Republican Party Call Rate Before Gingrich Leadership

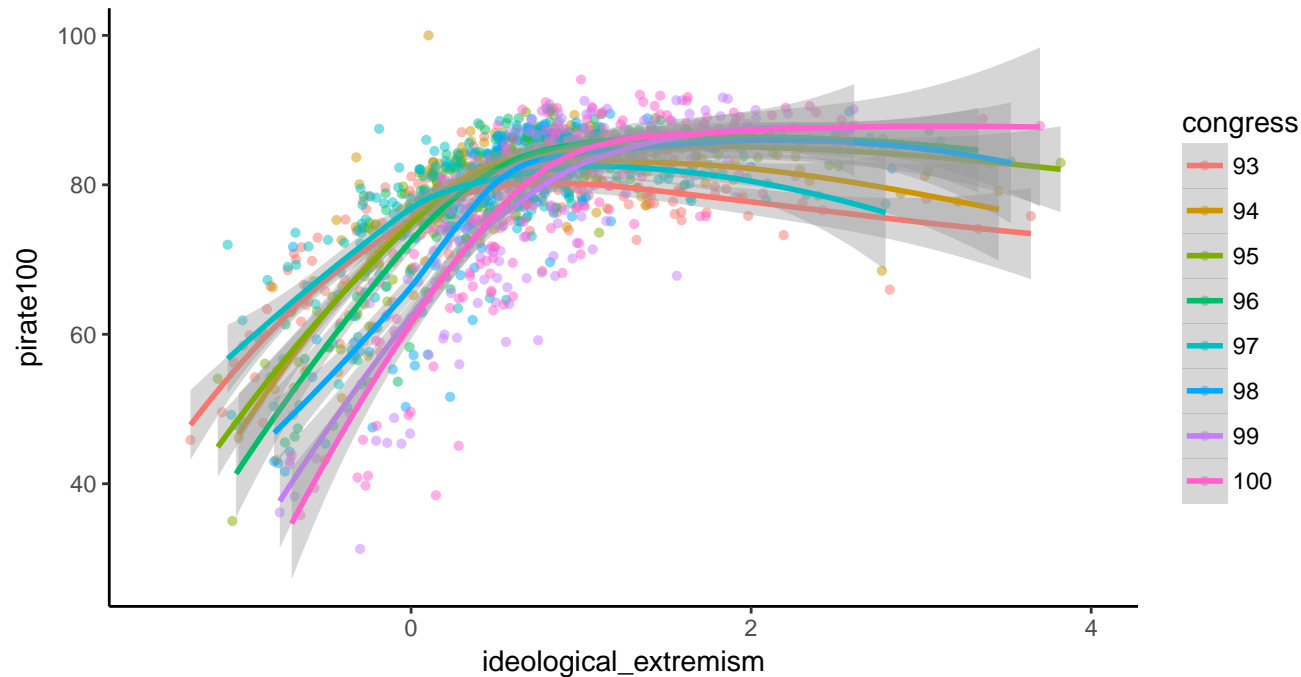

Figure 8: House Republican Baseline Party Vote Rate During Gingrich Leadership

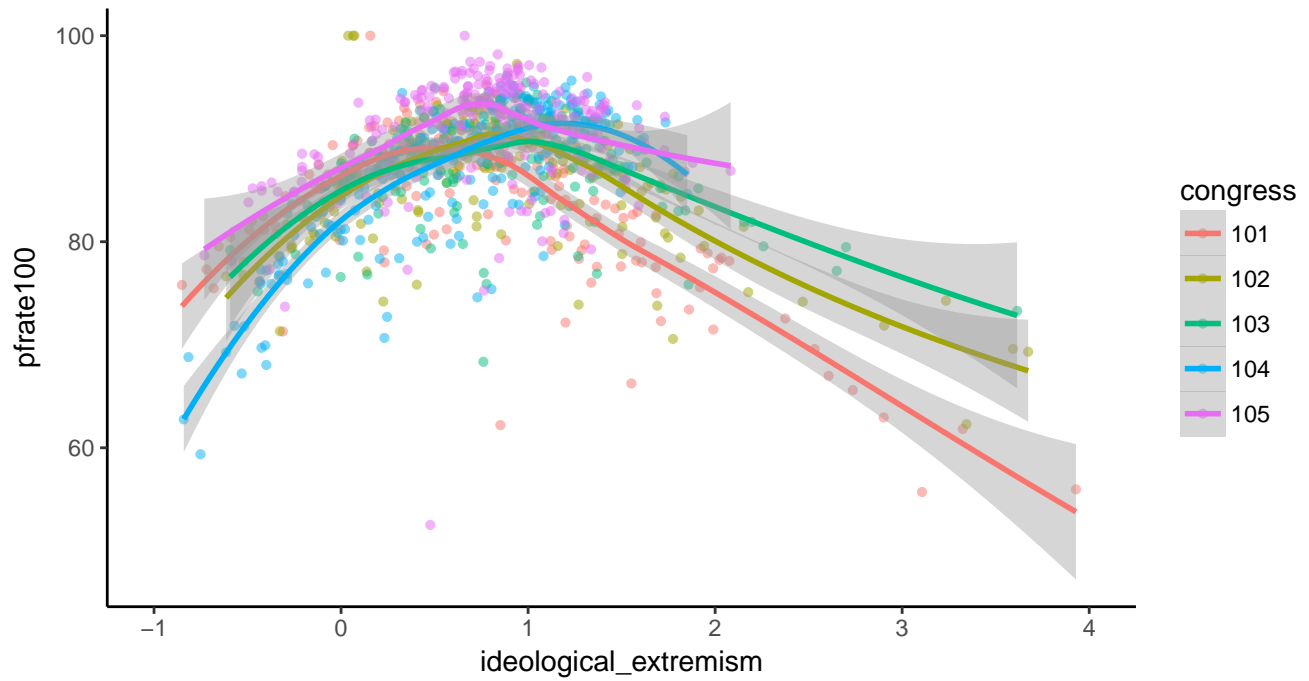

Figure 9: House Republican Party Call Rate During Gingrich Leadership

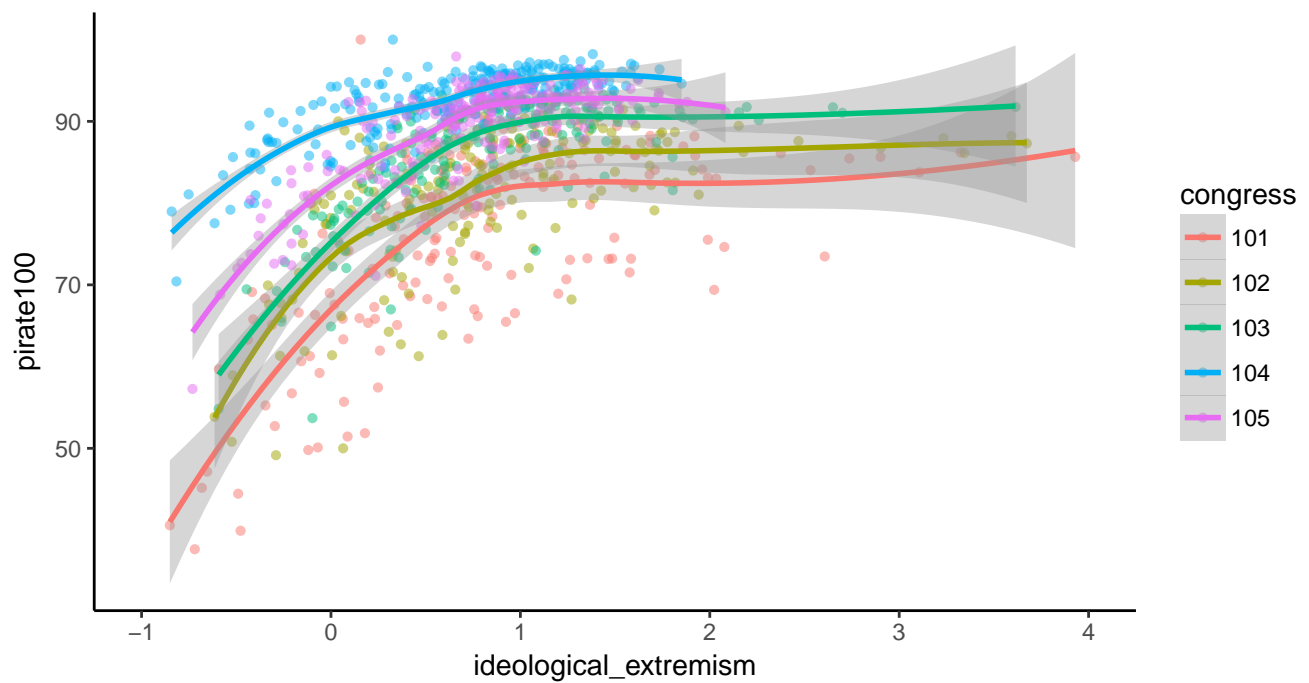

Figure 10: House Republican Baseline Party Vote Rate After Gingrich Leadership

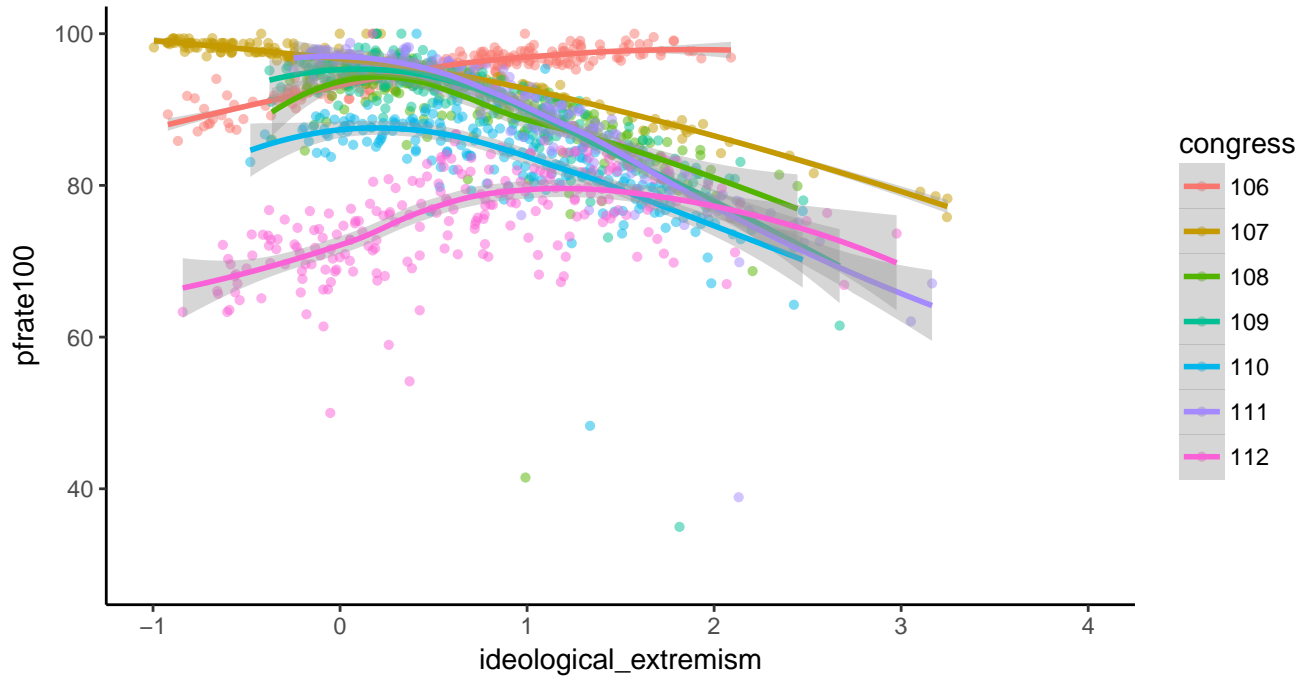

Figure 11: House Republican Party Call Rate After Gingrich Leadership

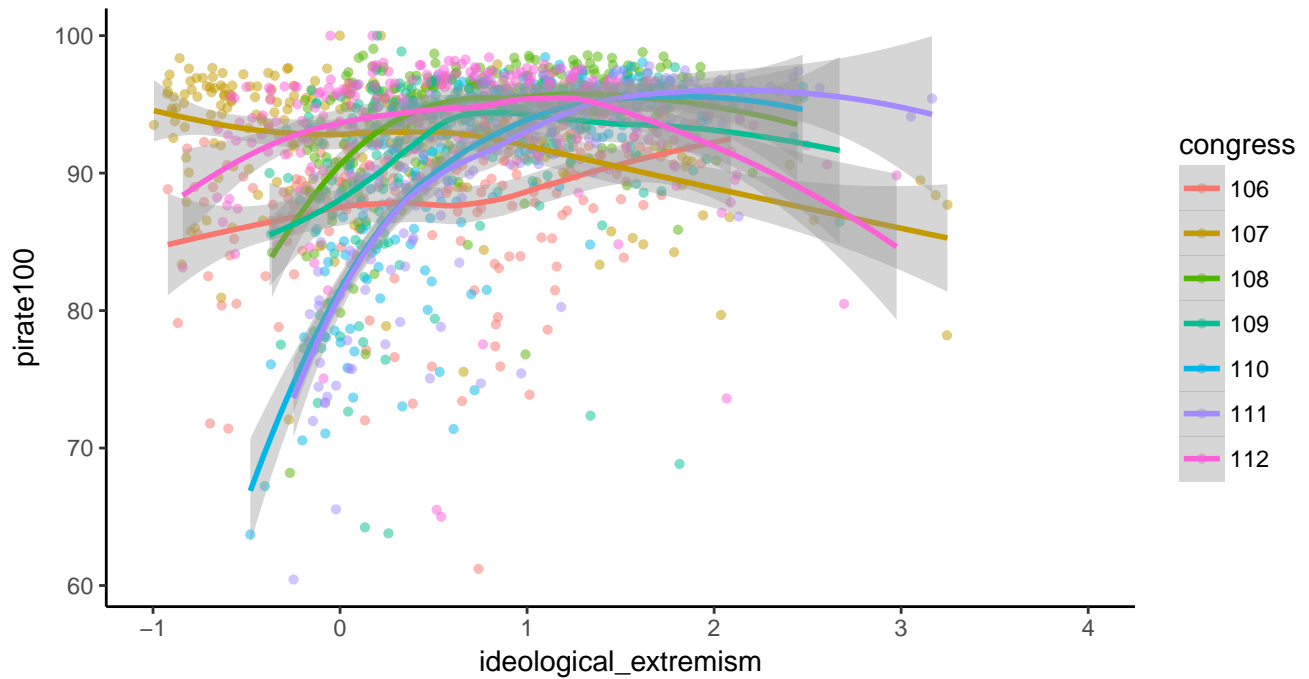

Figure 12: Senate Gingrich Senators and Other Republicans Baseline Party Vote Rate

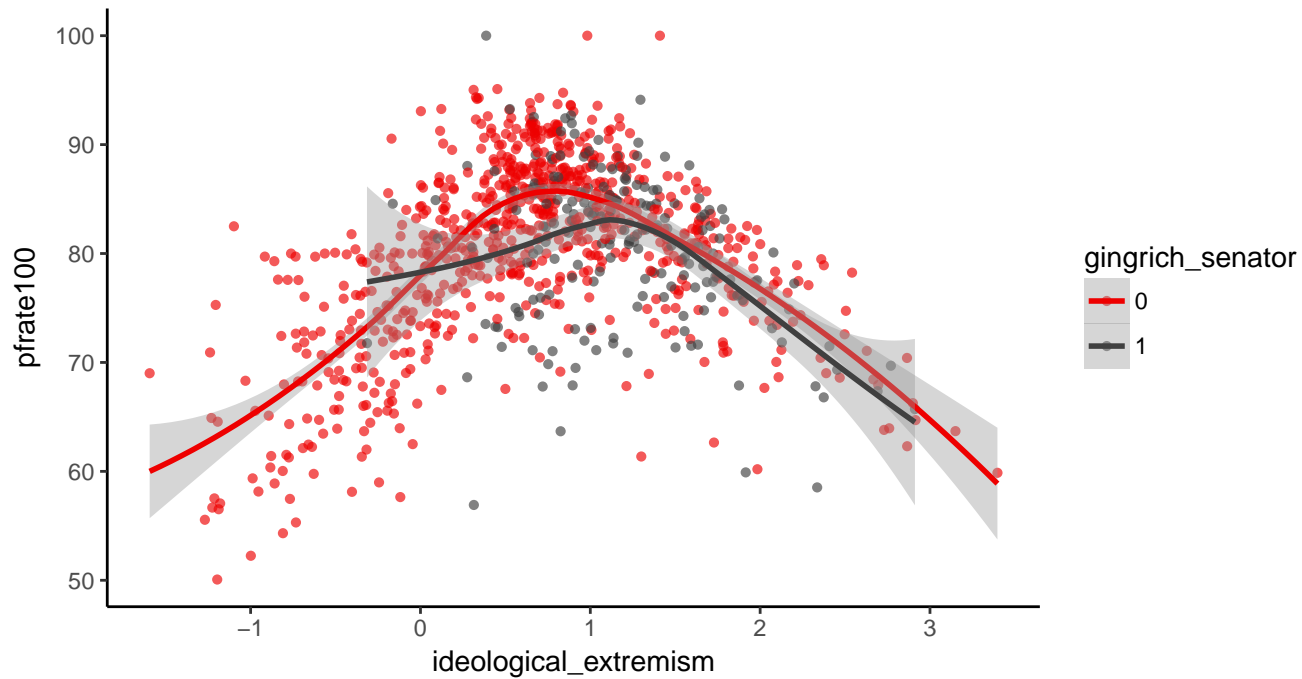

Figure 13: Senate Gingrich Senators and Other Republicans Party Call Rate

